The EOS Project presents

Ben Lowe of Young Evangelicals for Climate Action

Tuesday, February 18, 4pm Wilson Hall 115

Rev. Ben Lowe was born and raised a missionary kid in Southeast Asia, where he experienced firsthand the impacts of poverty and pollution. He is actively engaged on a number of justice issues, was the founding spokesperson and is now senior advisor of Young Evangelicals for Climate Action. A graduate of Wheaton College (IL), Ben is the author of Green Revolution, Doing Good Without Giving Up, and The Future of Our Faith. He is ordained in the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Ben Lowe will speak about evangelical Christianity and environmental action as part of Seeking New Metaphors: Mobilizing Culture to Confront Environmental Crises, a series of films and talks that asks: How do we collectively move from recognition of environmental problems to the moral commitment to adequately address these problems?
